

Flash by EIC

Rubber City and the hope of Thai rubber industry amid challenges

Event

Industrial Estate Authority of Thailand (IEAT) invited both foreign and Thai investors to participate in the Rubber City project during the Global Rubber & Latex Expo 2016 (GRTE2016) on 10 March 2016. Moreover, Thailand's Rubber City is now on an urgent implementation in accordance with the government's super cluster policy, which is expected to be completed in 2018. Its primary objectives are to boost domestic consumption of rubber and consequentially expand mid- and down-stream of rubber industry in Thailand.

Analysis Kedah's Rubber City is being implemented in Malaysia as well. According to Kedah State Government, Ku Abdul Rahman, the project is expected to complete the acquisitions and land clearing by the third quarter this year. This project is located just 80 kilometers away from Thailand's Rubber City. Malaysia aims to expand Kedah's Rubber City to over 6 million square meters by 2025, while Thailand's Rubber City currently has over 2 million square meters (excluding the southern industrial estate of 3.8 million square meters). Moreover, Indonesia is taking interest in investing in the Rubber City project as well.

If Thailand collaborates with Malaysia and Indonesia on developing the overall value-chain of the whole rubber industry, EIC assesses that rubber industry in Thailand will grow well in the near future. In early this year, Thailand, Malaysia, and Indonesia, (accounting for 60% of total world production), joined hands to reduce exports quantities under the tri-party agreement to boost the domestic consumption of each country. Such cooperation to reduce export quantities was seen as the right solution, because it could help to reduce global rubber supply sustainably. In addition, the tri-party alliance of the three countries has shown cooperation for embracing strengths and takling weaknesses, which will in turn help the whole rubber industry to grow in the long run.

Implication

EIC suggests investors carefully study Rubber City plans of Thailand and Malaysia before making investment decisions. While similar projects are currently being implemented, the two countries may differ in their incentive schemes for investors. It would be best to select an appropriate scheme for investors' own businesses.

Disclaimer: The information contained in this report has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable. However, neither we nor any of our respective affiliates, employees or representatives make any representation or warranty, express or implied, as to the accuracy or completeness of any of the information contained in this report, and we and our respective affiliates, employees or representatives expressly disclaim any and all liability relating to or resulting from the use of this report or such information by the recipient or other persons in whatever manner. Any opinions presented herein represent our subjective views and our current estimates and judgments based on various assumptions that may be subject to change without notice, and may not prove to be correct. This report is for the recipient's information only. It does not represent or constitute any advice, offer, recommendation, or solicitation by us and should not be relied upon as such. We, or any of our associates, may also have an interest in the companies mentioned herein.

Moreover Thai rubber entrepreneurs should find ways to become a part of the global value chain through international cooperation. If the tri-party cooperation becomes stronger and tightly knitted, the value chain of the rubber industry will transform itself into a super cluster internationally in the future. This opens up more opportunities that Thai rubber entrepreneaurs should not over look.

By : Teerayut Thaiturapaisan (teerayut.thaiturapaisan@scb.co.th) Economic Intelligence Center (EIC) Siam Commercial Bank Public Company Limited EIC Online: www.scbeic.com

Disclaimer: The information contained in this report has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable. However, neither we nor any of our respective affiliates, employees or representatives make any representation or warranty, express or implied, as to the accuracy or completeness of any of the information contained in this report, and we and our respective affiliates, employees or representatives expressly disclaim any and all liability relating to or resulting from the use of this report or such information by the recipient or other persons in whatever manner. Any opinions presented herein represent our subjective views and our current estimates and judgments based on various assumptions that may be subject to change without notice, and may not prove to be correct. This report is for the recipient's information only. It does not represent or constitute any advice, offer, recommendation, or solicitation by us and should not be relied upon as such. We, or any of our associates, may also have an interest in the companies mentioned herein.